5. COMMUNICATION: Networking Leadership 101
(https://www.plusacumen.org/courses/networking-leadership-101)
Networking 101 teaches how to build a core professional network. The content might be useful for a wide range of employees. However, it does ask for team-based participation, even though it is not required to complete the program. Giving the present social distancing situation, employees who take the course might maximize its benefit if they can connect with others virtually, which may be possible.
6. Storytelling for Change
Improve your public speaking by uncovering and communicating your personal story   (https://www.plusacumen.org/courses/storytelling-change)
This is a hands-on course for developing a personal story and integrating it into a larger presentation. The goal is to develop a leadership presence framework, important storytelling tools, and a rehearsed presentation that can help the presenter to better connect with an audience and inspire change.
7. Prasad Setty of Google on People Analytics
(https://www.plusacumen.org/courses/prasad-setty-google-people-analytics)

This course introduces 'People Analytics' – an emerging field that uses data to advance how organizations make decisions about human resources and enables leaders to operate on evidence rather than intuition. The course will be useful for managers and staff teams working in the area of Human Resources. It uses Google's own example to introduce a field that was pioneered by Prasad Setty himself.

8. Empathy and Emotional Intelligence at Work
(https://www.edx.org/course/empathy-and-emotional-intelligence-at-work)
The course is part of a certificate program and promises to develop research-based skills to strengthen empathy and trust, improve collaboration, and create more innovative, productive, and satisfying experiences at work. A key insight from the science of happiness is that our own personal happiness depends heavily on our relationships with others. By tuning into the needs of other people, we actually enhance our own emotional well-being. The same is true within organizations: those that foster trusting, cooperative relationships are more likely to have a more satisfied, engaged—and more productive and innovative.

9. People Management
(https://www.edx.org/course/people-management?index=product&queryID=b0558003dc5f001958f348daa37a8719&position=1)
This course teaches first time managers leadership and communication skills designed to turn them into great team leaders. Will be a useful addition to staff who are looking to take on management roles or those who are already in new roles and have responsibility for managing a team.

10. Working on Teams: A Practical Guide
(https://www.edx.org/course/working-in-teams-a-practical-guide)
The course addresses teamwork in professional activities. It introduces participants to teamwork skills that help each member improve their performance on a team. It teaches participants how they can build effective teams, be a great team player and manage team conflict.

Policy Courses

1. GBA+: https://women-gender-equality.canada.ca/en/gender-based-analysis-plus/take-course.html

GBA+ is an analytical process used to assess how diverse groups of women, men and non-binary people may experience policies, programs and initiatives. The "plus" in GBA+ acknowledges that GBA goes beyond biological (sex) and socio-cultural (gender) differences. We all have multiple identity factors that intersect to make us who we are; GBA+ also considers many other identity factors, like race, ethnicity, religion, age, and mental or physical disability.

2. A Framework for Analyzing Public Policies: http://www.ncchpp.ca/438/Online_Course.ccnpps

This online training offers a structured approach to analyzing public policies. This approach is based on an analytical framework that reflects a public health perspective, while at the same time integrating other concerns of policy makers.

3. The public policy - action relationship https://www.open.edu/openlearn/money-management/management/business-studies/the-public-policy-action-relationship/content-section-0?active-tab=description-tab

Much literature on the public policy process focuses narrowly on the policy-making part. This free course, The public policy action relationship, widens the focus to examine the implementation phase, and how change happens as a result of new policies: that is, policy action relationship. It does this by looking at four different models of how this relationship can work, through examples from varying fields. The course will be of interest to public sector managers, their staff and the general reader.

4. Speaking to persuade: Motivating audiences with solid arguments and moving language: https://www.coursera.org/learn/persuade-speech#enroll

By the end of this course, you should be able to design persuasive speeches that address problems and solutions and that motivate audience members. You should be able to use rhetorical style strategically and deliver passionate and compelling speeches. Learners will record speeches, providing and receiving peer feedback.

5. Epidemiology: The Basic Science of Public Health: https://www.coursera.org/learn/epidemiology

Often called "the cornerstone" of public health, epidemiology is the study of the distribution and determinants of diseases, health conditions, or events among populations and the application of that study to control health problems. By applying the concepts learned in this course to current public health problems and issues, students will understand the practice of epidemiology as it relates to real life and makes for a better appreciation of public health programs and policies. This course explores public health issues like cardiovascular and infectious diseases – both locally and globally – through the lens of epidemiology.

6. National Collaborating Center for Healthy Public Policy - Free info and seminars. http://www.ncchpp.ca/en/

Learning about Climate Change

1. How to Transform Apocalypse Fatigue into Action on Global Warming
   https://www.ted.com/talks/per_espen_stoknes_how_to_transform_apocalypse_fatigue_into_action_on_global_warming?language=en

2. United Nations Climate Change Learning Partnership (UN CC: Learn)
   https://www.uncclearn.org/learning-resources
   UN CC:Learn fosters sharing of information, experience and lessons learned in matters of climate change learning. Additionally, the UN CC:Learn partnership has designed various learning materials available on this website.

3. Climate Change: The Science and Global Impact
   https://www.edx.org/course/climate-change-the-science-and-global-impact
   The course covers the basic principles of atmospheric science, methods of climate data collection and tracking of greenhouse gas emissions. It introduces basic climate modeling and explores the impact of various greenhouse gas emissions scenarios. Finally, it outlines the impacts of climate change on environmental, social, economic and human systems, from coral reefs and sea level rise to urban infrastructure. The course follows the general outline of the 5th Assessment Report of the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

4. The Health Effects of Climate Change
   https://www.edx.org/course/the-health-effects-of-climate-change
   Created with support from the Harvard Global Health Institute, this course will explain how climate change impacts people around the globe, but also how it directly affects you and your life. Though your risk rises with the rising global temperatures, climate change is a solvable problem, and there are things you can do to mitigate that risk.

5. The Science of Well-Being
   https://www.coursera.org/learn/the-science-of-well-being?
   In this course you will engage in a series of challenges designed to increase your own happiness and build more productive habits. As preparation for these tasks, Yale Professor Laurie Santos reveals misconceptions about happiness, annoying features of the mind that lead us to think the way we do, and the research that can help us change. You will ultimately be prepared to successfully incorporate a specific wellness activity into your life.

6. Master Gardener Short Course Series ($)
   https://workspace.oregonstate.edu/course/master-gardener-short-course-series
   The Master Gardener Short Course Series highlights sections from OSU's Master Gardener Online course, which allows you to study the specific fundamentals that you're interested in. The various subject areas of the OSU Master Gardener curriculum encourage you to learn the art and science of growing and caring for your own plants.
